

A concerted push for the economy

GIVENTHE EVOLVING GLOBAL dynamics, India is the new kid on the block which is opening to the world of 'experience economy'. A host of music concerts have been concerts have been announced with some global artistes like Maroon 5, Green Day, Shawn Mendes, Louis Tomlinson coming for the very first time. Other artistes like Coldplay, Dua Lina, Ed Sheeran are playing. Lipa, Ed Sheeran are playing once again in India. This frenzy has also pushed local performers like Diljit Dosanjh to the forefront. The rise in to the forefront. The rise in disposable income has resulted in the significant demand surge for such con-certs in India. The direct and indirect spending on these concerts spanning around two-three months will provide a major boost to the overall spending and consumption

Ed Sheeran, seen with Diljit Dosanjh, had a sold-out concert in Mumbai in March. Sheeran is set to return to India in 2025 ~₹6,000-8,000 cr

Thousands throng to watch Indian team train

Trophy: Hardly anvone to watch Australian team

SRIRAM VEERA Adelaide, December 3

"THEY TOLD ME it will be busy

"THEYTOLD MEIt will be busy, but this busy, hull" The elder! lady at the entrance of the Adelaide Ovalsays with a smile.

Around her, utter chaotic joy prevails as at least 3,000 fans storm through just to see the Indian team practice. Dhol beats, cries of 'jeetega bhai jeetega', 'Kolhi Kohil' and 'Rohit' Rohit' ring in the air, It was an open session for fans to watch the Australian and Indian teams training. There were hardly any the Australian and Indian teams training. There were hardly any people to watch the Australians train in the afternoon but around 5 pm, they blew in like a storm to see the Indians, shocking the lady at the gate. Around 6 pm — the Indians had a long training session that started even before 5 pm and ended nearly three-and-a-half hours later — a group of at least.

ended nearly three-and-a-half hours later – a group of at least 20 Australian schoolkids in uni-form ran in to see them. There was no such group for the Aus-tralians training. They weren't kids of Indian origin either, such is the attraction of this Indian team Down Under.

The official training was supposed to start at 5:30 pm ularlybad just behind the crease. supposed to start at 5:30 pm local time, and it did, but two Indians were at nets an hour earlier: captain Rohit Sharma and Rishabh Pant, who hit the batting nets straightway, before the crowd came in. Rohit's training in particular was interesting. "Yaar, gaddha haildhart (There is a hole/dent)" he said about an area of the rorund at the prominer resee of

he said about an area of the ground at the popping crease of the first net he went into bat. There are four nets at the Ade-laide Oval, and he chose to carry on in that particular one as it didn't upset his rhythm. The skipper stood carefully, his backleg cutting the popping crease line. The dent was partic-ularlybad just behind the crease. Even as a support staff sug-gested rather naively that he could perhaps stand a touch ahead, Rohit replied, "arrel I want to stand here". And so he stood, back leg on the crease line. His first move-ment was opening that front leg that pressed forward at an angle towards the bowler. Rohit has a rather visible twitch of angle towards the bowler. Rohit has a rather visible twitch of both feet as the bowler is about to enter the delivery stride, his knees flexing, and the front foot opening out a touch. This was his main focus in the nets. Rohit was seen discussing with assistant coach Abhishek Nayar if he was getting the stance and movement right. In his first stint, before the other players came, Rohit faced newshiny balls. Does that mean he might yet open the innings in the Adelaide Test or was it to just ensure that he faced deliveries that seamed a bit - as new balls tend to do. Once the rest of the team joined him at the batting pers after warm; un and catch-team joined him at the batting nets after warm-up and catching practice, he faced old balls. In each of the four nets, but he are the pairings are anything to go, Robit was paired with Pant. One batsman facing a few balls, and another at the non-striker's end, K. Rahul and Yashasvi Jaiswaj. Virat Kohil and Shubman Gill;

Rohit and Pant, Washington Sudar and Nitish Reddy. That indicates Jaiswal and Rahul as the openers, Gill and Kohlite No.3 and No.4, respectively, and soon. But all that's speculation. Eitherway, suffice to say Indians practised long, hard, and rather intensely, with at least 3,000 people hollering around them. Incidentally, head coach Gautam Camblit, who had gone to India after the Perth Test and missed the warm-up game and missed the warm-up game.

gone to India after the Perth lest and missed the warm-up game in Canberra, was back and stood behind the stumps at one of the four nets. Arms crossed, face as intense as ever, he was almost motionless watching proceedings. Now and then, when Rohit was between his stints from one net to another, they would have a short chat, but for the main part, Gambhir stood there like a part, Cambhir stood there like a statue, observing everything quietly, Just like the statue of Clem Hill, who played in the early 1900s, that stands outside the arena, near the road across the river that shimmered in the afternoon sun.

Inside though, the Indians, were smashing the ball. The last word, however, goes tothat security lady. "How many people turn up to that security lady.

"How many people turn up for nets for the Indians in your country?!" Oh, it's not open to the public there. And she goes, "Makes sense, I can see 10,000 landing up. How will people like me manage, then?!"
